

Communion of Dreams: Chapter Synopsis

Downey

- Chapter 1: Introduction of the main characters (Jon and Seth), the setting of the novel, and the discovery of the alien artifact on Saturn's moon Titan. Plans made to send two research teams: one hard science, one conceptual. The hard science team will have to gather equipment, leave a couple of days after the conceptual team.
- Chapter 2: Introduction of remaining main character (Darnell) and the secondary characters (Jon's conceptual research team members). The first dream 'leakage'. The mystery of Chu Ling.
- Chapter 3: Jon's team prepares to leave, transfer to Wright Station in near-Earth orbit. Explanation of the base technology of the novel. Additional dream memories.
- Chapter 4: Onboard the da Vinci for the 8 day trip to Titan. Preliminary discussion and speculation among the team about the artifact. First instance of shared dreaming.
- Chapter 5: Onboard the da Vinci. Discovery that Chu Ling is a clone. Development of character interactions & tensions. Further discussion about artifact. More dream sequences.
- Chapter 6: Onboard the da Vinci. Start of lucid dreaming for Jon. Realization that the artifact might be manipulating the initial equipment brought in to study it, how to counter that. Further information about the genetic manipulation of Chu Ling.
- Chapter 7: Transfer to Titan Prime, research station in near-Titan orbit. Introduction of additional secondary characters. Military precautions & protocols. The experimental deep-range ship Hawking. Possible solution to the artifact manipulating the research equipment.
- Chapter 8: First trip to the surface of Titan. Development of Darnell character. Jon's experience with the artifact and connected dream sequence. Hints that the secret of the artifact has been leaked.
- Chapter 9: (hereafter action takes place on both Titan itself and the research station Titan Prime) Evidence of large-scale dream leakage in the general population. Paint the Moon reference. More shared dreaming, lucid dreaming, and dream revelation: what Jon starts to consider the 'Dreamtime'. The Edenists.
- Chapter 10: Another dreamtime encounter with the artifact. Arrival of second team of field scientists to Titan Prime, set-up of comprehensive sensing equipment around artifact. Fragment B 16 by Heraclitus. News breaks on Earth about the artifact.
- Chapter 11: Hints at Darnell's history. Tension between the teams. Discrepancy in cargo manifest. Revelation about Chu Ling. Waking dream for Jon.
- Chapter 12: Heidegger, Heraclitus, and the development of cognitive awareness. Cautious experiments in studying the artifact. Accidental direct physical contact with the artifact, and what happens to cyberware. Revelation that Darnell was the source of the news leak.

Chapter 13: Medical changes in those who touch the artifact: literary and religious references. Chu Ling detects an aura. Dreamtime discussion with Darnell. Unrest on Earth. Death of one of the Marines guarding the artifact, subsequent attempt to blow up the dome housing it. Jon touches the artifact.

Chapter 14: Communion in dreamtime. Jon recovers, but there are changes: he can no longer use any cyberware. Connection with Chu Ling. Edenists on Earth attempt major terrorist attacks. Meeting between Darnell & Chu Ling. Silence from the Hawking. Dreamtime discussion with Darnell. Jon's changed perception of artifact.

Chapter 15: Mystery of the Hawking grows. Jon's healing abilities. Transfer of Seth to Titan in order to help with the examination of the artifact. Jon gets an external cyber rig. Seth vanishes.

Chapter 16: Jon touches artifact again, finds Seth. Seth discovers that there are dozens of other artifacts on the surface of Titan. Implication that there are others elsewhere in the system, and they seem to be joined together in some way, creating a bubble, this connected with the loss of the Hawking. Revelation about Darnell's history in a healing cult. Release of the Diabolus virus on the station.

Chapter 17: Diabolus implications, steps taken to protect station. Attempt at sabotage on Titan Prime, evidently an effort to kill Chu Ling. Realization that those who have been in contact with the artifact are immune to the virus, as is Chu Ling. Further understanding in the role of the artifacts surrounding the system.

Chapter 18: Artifacts also have a role in the history of healing energies. Jon and others explore using this to treat those with the virus, decide to get help from Darnell with this. Chu Ling and the devas. Communion of dreams. Edenist moves to take over. Jon confronts, is shot.

Chapter 19: Jon saved by Darnell & Seth. Sabotage effective. Revelation about Chu Ling's history. Final explanation of Heraclitus. Confrontation with Edenist, his death. Also the sacrifice of Darnell. Seth's merger with the artifact and transformation. Closing scene and the explanation of everything.

Communion of Dreams: Chapter Outline (Analytical version.)

Downey

Chapter 1: Introduction of several of the main characters, the setting of the novel, and the discovery that drives the main theme of the book: an alien artifact is found on Titan, the largest moon of Saturn. Basic plot is established: sending two research teams out to investigate, protagonist and major characters in first team.

Chapter 2: Introduction of additional characters, establish more of the culture and societal forces at work. Reference to potential problems the teams may face. First use of dreaming as plot device. Introduce mystery character.

Chapter 3: Shift in locale as team starts journey to Titan. Explanation of the base technology of the novel. Character development. Dreams used to foreshadow future events.

Chapter 4: In transit. Exploration of characters as they speculate about the artifact. First instances of shared dreaming.

Chapter 5: In transit. Development of character interactions & tensions. Major complicating fact about mystery character discovered. Dreaming now hinting at a deeper psychological reality.

Chapter 6: In transit. Start of lucid dreaming for protagonist. Characters realize that their preconceptions about the artifact could define a paradigm limit.

Chapter 7: Arrival at Titan. Introduction of additional characters. Tension of military precautions with hint of future problems. New technological element (an experimental ship leaving the solar system) introduced, which is an off-shoot of the basic technology that has led to the discovery of the artifact.

Chapter 8: Development of relationship between protagonist and another major character. Protagonist encounters artifact, has a related dream sequence. News comes that the secret of the artifact has evidently leaked back on Earth.

Chapter 9: Evidence discovered that the artifact seemingly has had effect on general population through dreams. Protagonist and others experience more shared dreaming, lucid dreaming, and dream revelation. Reintroduction of antagonist element.

Chapter 10: Protagonist has another dream encounter with artifact, leads to his focus on Heraclitus' Fragment B 16 from early Greek history. Arrival of secondary characters in the additional research team. Tension builds as news of the artifact's existence is broadcast, suspicion is that this is due to antagonists.

Chapter 11: Character depth and history explored during interactions between the teams. Discrepancy in cargo manifest adds to growing tension. Revelation about mystery character. Protagonist has a waking dream.

Chapter 12: Further exploration of the Heraclitus theme about the development of cognitive awareness. Parallel development of dream awareness when the artifact is accidentally touched during scientific examination. Revelation that one of the main characters was the source of the news leak, suspicion directed at him.

Chapter 13: Tension starts to crank up. Introduction of new element: anyone who comes in contact with artifact is changed by it such that they cannot use common technological equipment hard-wired into their bodies. First real evidence of minor psychic abilities. Problems back on Earth. One of the guards assigned to provide protection is killed, and an attempt is made to ruin the research mission. Protagonist has additional dreamtime sequences.

Chapter 14: Tension continues to build. Major unrest on Earth. Mystery character shows signs of hidden psychic abilities. Problems with experimental ship, hints that it might be related to artifact. Protagonist starts to experience a dreamtime connection with the artifact itself.

Chapter 15: Complete loss of contact with experimental ship. Protagonist discovers that his contact with the artifact has led to the development of psychic healing abilities. One of the major characters is subsumed by the artifact.

Chapter 16: Protagonist touches artifact again, finds and rescues lost character. Discovery that there are dozens of such artifacts on Titan, with implication that there are others throughout the system, and they are somehow connected with the loss of contact with the experimental ship. Revelation that one of the characters was involved with a 'healing cult' during a flu pandemic decades previously. Also discovery that someone has released a deadly new flu virus on the station.

Chapter 17: Flu virus is just one effort to sabotage the mission, there are others, including an attempt to kill the mystery character. Realization that this character is immune to the new virus, as is anyone who has come in contact with the artifact. Effort to determine identity of antagonist.

Chapter 18: Attempt made to circumvent the threat of the virus. Antagonist revealed, he and protagonist have confrontation, protagonist is shot.

Chapter 19: Protagonist saved through use of psychic healing. Final questions about mystery character answered, and at the same time understanding of the Heraclitus reference and how it relates to the artifact. Second confrontation with antagonist leads to his death, but another major character sacrifices himself to save artifact. Transformation of protagonist, also of another major character. Epilog is back on Earth, weeks later, when full ramifications of the changes for man and society are just starting to become clear.
